NETWORKING AND

DEVELOPMENT GROUPS

— In Erie County

Networking in real life still matters, but most people, especially young professionals, can find it challenging to discover ways to effectively network. One of the easiest solutions is to join a professional organization.

Here are a few reasons why:

- The events are often structured to include and encourage networking
- Everyone is there for a similar reason, providing a common ground for discussion
- On top of networking, organizations provide the added advantage of professional development

Niche, industry specific organizations have their benefits, but we are partial to organizations (like YEP) that are dedicated specifically to young professionals and cut across all sectors. Broad groups inspire new ideas and allow for surprise connections that can lead to new and exciting things. In the following pages you will find a list of local professional organizations that are either dedicated to young professionals or are frequented by young professionals.

Our mission at YEP:

Young Erie Professionals is dedicated to providing opportunities for emerging leaders and career-minded peers to develop professionally, while actively participating in their community to connect, attract and retain young talent in the local workforce.

Is your organization not on the list? Let us know and we can get you added!
